THE HOME PAPER

SAY!

(By CHARLES J. ARNOLD)

From my old friend, Dora Keller, of Cloverdale comes a query: "What makes the Wild Flowers Wild?" But that does not worry me half as much as what makes blackberries red when they are green.

But I will enlighten Dora, this much. It is not the same thing that makes tame men wild that makes wild flowers wild. And Dora knows what I mean, too.

Which reminds me a few years ago, when this same Dora was up before Judge James P. Hughes, on a minor charge. Now Judge Hughes and Dora had been school mates, years and years ago, back Cloverdale way, and as boys had played together. But, true to his trust the Judge, when Dora was arraigned before him, adopted a most judicial air and after finding Dora, launched into a severe arraignment of the culprit. After a severe lecture which almost had Dora in tears, the Judge relented a bit and suspended sentence, admonishing Dora to return to Cloverdale and walk in a straight and narrow path. Now the Judge had advertised a Farm Sale at his farm for one day the following week, and Dora knowing about the sale and desiring to again assume friendly relations with his old playmate, turned, as he started through the door leading from the court room and called back: "Well, good bye Jimmy, I'll see you at the sale."

Now this is the same Dora who wants to know what makes wild flowers wild.

So I am going to take it up with Judge Hughes and whatever he says goes.

The county commissioners met Monday in their regular session but I did not get an opportunity to get over to the meeting and take up with them the removal of the court house square sidewalks. In fact, I was just a little fearful to go over and take up the matter with them for fear they might have in their pockets a few hunks of concrete or the crumbling walks with which they might open a barrage on me and my propaganda. When a lad I learned discretion was the best part of valor and it still sticks.

Indianapolis has its Soldiers and Sailors monument, New York has its Statue of Liberty, San Francisco has its Golden Gate, Cloverdale, almost had its big dam, but Greencastle has its courthouse sidewalks.

Cloverdale seemingly has lost one big dam but right now there are many more emphatic "dams" to take the place of the lost one. In this case the old saying of "foresight is better than hindsight" might well apply to some of the land owners, who killed the goose which was trying to lay a cement dam.

Now that the Cloverdale Dam and D. B. Johnson's four story business and apartment house at the corner of Jackson and Walnut streets have slid off the front seat of the big project wagon, whatinthe have we to look forward to excepting the fall fair and the coming of summer.

I beg leave to report that I took a horse back ride Sunday and did not fall off ONCE.

Early arrivals at the Greencastle Country Club golf course Sunday morning might have been lead to believe that it was Easter and that a big "egg rolling" was about to start. Glenn Lyon, attorney and golf player extraordinary, was the cause of all the excitement, for—when he appeared on the first tee and emptied a bunch of brilliantly colored golf balls on the ground they resembled a lot of Easter eggs, so brilliant were the colors. Whether Mr. Lyon, who we will admit is of an artistic nature, painted the balls himself or whether his good wife, on the evening before Easter while coloring eggs for their son, Keith, got some of Mr. Lyons golf balls mixed up with the eggs, or just what happened, was not divulged by Mr. Lyon. About the only admission that I personally was able to secure from him was that the golf balls were brightly colored.

TRANS-ATLANTIC PLANE FRIENDSHIP LEAVES NOVA SCOTIA EARLY TODAY FOR TREPASSEY, NEWFOUNDLAND

ENGLAND ULTIMATE GOAL

Big Tri-Motored Ship Carries Wilmer Stultz, Miss Amelia Earhart And Lou Gordon

TREPASSEY BAY, Newfoundland, June 4.—(INS)—The trans-Atlantic plane Friendship bearing Wilmer Stultz, Miss Amelia Earhart and Lou Gordon arrived here from Halifax, N. S., at 2:28 o'clock local time.

HALIFAX, N. S., June 4.—(INS)—The trans-Atlantic plane Friendship, carrying Miss Amelia Earhart, Wilmer Stultz and Louis Gordon, hopped on at 9:30 this morning daylight time for Trepassey, Newfoundland on the second leg of its trip to Europe. Weather conditions were perfect.

The distance from here to Trepassey is about 250 miles. From there after inspecting their engines and refilling their tanks, the fliers will take off over the long water jump. If conditions are favorable, the take-off from Trepassey may be made later today.

HALIFAX, N. S., June 4.—(INS)—With England as her ultimate destination, the auge tri-motored monoplane Friendship, piloted by Wilmer Stultz, and carrying Miss Amelia Earhart, a well-known aviatrix and social worker of Boston, as co-pilot, and Lou "Slim" Gordon as mechanic was to take off from here today for Trepassey, N. F.

Equipped with pontoons, the plane swooped down through the cloud banks, made a perfect landing in the harbor and moored near the Halifax Naval Air station here yesterday after an uneventful journey from Boston.

A few minutes later, the plane took off again for Trepassey but the heavy fog prompted Stultz to return here about thirty minutes later. The murky atmosphere prevented and further attempts to take off during the day.

Miss Earhart hopes to be the first woman flier successfully to cross the North Atlantic ocean in a non-stop flight. She will relieve Stultz at the controls during their contemplated flight to England. She is a capable pilot having more than 500 hours of solo flying to her credit.

BRAZIL'S LOSS GREENCASTLE'S GAIN - REPORT

FAMILY OF SEVEN ORDERED TO DEPART FROM CLAY COUNTY TOWN—SAID TO RESIDE IN THIS CITY—ORA LADY SOUGHT FOR NOT BEING A LADY

(Brazil Times)
Brazil lost about seven in population today and Greencastle received a corresponding influx in population when a family of Greencastle's "400" who recently moved to this city left hurriedly on the advice of the police and returned to their former stamping grounds.

In the party were Mrs. Dora Smith and her daughter, Mrs. Maude Simmerman and her five children. A juvenile court case involving two girls who had rooms in the house on east Ridge street occupied by Mrs. Smith and party, attracted attention to the Greencastle outfit.

Chief of Police Fulk made an investigation and discovered that a man, giving the name of Ora Lady—who according to reports is a lady by no means—but a vault cleaner of Greencastle—had been staying at the house as a companion to Mrs. Simmerman. Mrs. Simmerman, who is a widow and her four children moved to Brazil a couple of months ago when things became uncomfortable in Greencastle. Lady is said to have made frequent trips here and remained over the week end and is said to be the father of Mrs. Simmerman's latest addition to her family—a baby about five weeks old—according to information obtained by the police.

When Chief Fulk called at the house a few days ago to interview Lady the latter was eating supper in (Please Turn to Page 4)

FIRST UNION SERVICE HELD SUNDAY NIGHT

REV. B. H. BRUNER, PASTOR OF FIRST CHRISTIAN CHURCH, IS SPEAKER—"BEYOND THE SUNSET" IS TOPIC—NEXT MEETING AT METHODIST CHURCH

The first service of the evening union meetings of the churches for the summer, was held on Sunday evening at the Presbyterian Church with a fair attendance. Rev. V. L. Raphael presided and read the scripture lesson; Rev. C. H. Taylor offered prayer and Rev. B. H. Bruner was the speaker. A special musical number was given by a quartet. The next meeting will be held on June 17 at the Methodist Church with Rev. V. L. Raphael as the speaker.

"Beyond the Sunset" was the speakers subject. Rev. Bruner's sermon was based upon the following words from the eleventh chapter of the book of Deuteronomy: "Are they not behind the Jordan, behind the way of the going down of the sun?" In this chapter Moses is telling the Children of Israel of the inheritance which waits for them in that land beyond the Jordan, behind the going down of the sun. This inheritance consisted of both a blessing and a curse. A blessing for those who listened to Jehovah and obeyed his words, and a curse for those who were guilty of the sin of disobedience. Rev. Bruner said in part:

"The passing of a day in a beautiful sunset has always suggested the passing of a life out into the great beyond. The soldiers in the late war came to think and speak of death as 'going west.' Rev. Bruner then quoted several beautiful poems to show how the sunset and death and immortality has captured the imaginations of the greatest poets of the world. 'We cannot look at the sunset,' he said, 'without wondering what has become of those who have gone into that strange land beyond the sunset. Margaret E. Sangster expressed a longing and a faith which finds a ready response in most human hearts in these choice words:

Somewhere back of the sunset, the prayers that we breathe shall rise,
And rest, like a kiss that is gentle, on a pair of joy-filled eyes....

Somewhere, back of the sunset, when the evening shadows fall,
There is a heart that listens, and answers my own heart's call.

"We are all moving on toward the end of the day, toward that land beyond the sunset. At the beginning of every day these words were recorded in the log-book of Columbus, 'This day we sailed westward.' This is what we must write each day in the log-book of life. 'This day we sailed westward.' Every day brings us just a little nearer to that land beyond the sunset. The prophet Jeremiah

GALLANT CREW FIGHT ODDS ON 3,170 MILE HOP

FIGHT AND CONQUER TROPICAL STORM—MESSAGES INDICATE PLANE HALF WAY TO SUVA ISLANDS

LEAVE HONOLULU SUNDAY Calmly Set Out On Longest Over-Water Flight Ever Attempted—Fiji Island In Pacific Are Goal

HONOLULU, T. H., June 4.—(INS)—The Australian bound monoplane Southern Cross, with four men aboard, was fighting a thrilling battle with the elements on the last 800 miles of its 3,100 miles dash from Hawaii to Suva, Fiji Islands, according to messages from the plane picked up here today by radio corporation of America.

HONOLULU, T. H., June 4.—(INS)—The monoplane Southern Cross was cutting a clean path through the air. Keeping to a true course on its 3100-mile hop from Hawaii to Fiji Islands and its crew still maintained high hopes of reaching Suva. It was indicated by a message flashed from the trans-Pacific plane at 2 a. m. (Hawaiian Island Time) today.

The message said: "Position 2 A. M. Latitude 3:07 South; Longitude 171 West approximately over Phoenix group."

The Phoenix Isles, lying about 1866 miles from Honolulu, had been chosen by Captain Charles Kingsford Smith, Commander of one flight, as an emergency landing in case of necessity. It is directly in the path of the big plane.

HONOLULU, June 4.—(INS)—Grimacing at their uneven odds with death, four men in an airplane today were fighting tropical storms a mile and a half above the ocean in a daring attempt to be the first to span the treacherous reaches of the South Pacific. They are the gallant crew of the tri-motored Fokker plane Southern Cross; Captain C. E. Kingsford-Smith, C. T. P. Ulm, Harry W. Lyons and James Warner, who reached here Friday after a non-stop flight from the mainland of California.

It was the first lap of their proposed 7800 mile flight to Australia. With barely two days rest, the intrepid air men yesterday morning climbed aboard their ship at Barking Sands Field on the neighboring Island of Kauai, and calmly set out on the long east-over-water flight ever attempted.

Their destination is Suva, Fiji Islands, a little dot in the Southern Pacific, 3170 miles from Honolulu. As on the 2400-mile hop from California to Hawaii, the unfailing radio told the progress of the hazardous venture.

These messages told of storms and the struggles to rise above them with a missing motor as calmly as a man would say "Good morning." These men, already reconciled to death but fighting every minute to live, take their troubles lightly and in a jesting mood. Their radio quips flashing out of the darkness are dramatic for instance:

"A race between us and the clouds, going to 10,000 (altitude). Going to be a bad night. Motors doing heavy pulling to 6,500."

At 1 o'clock this morning, Pacific time, the huge monoplane was in clear view of the constellation "Southern Cross" for which it was named.

The equator had been crossed and the plane continued roaring on its way at a speed of 100 miles an hour. Seventeen hundred miles of the dangerous hop from Pausi Island to Suva had been covered, and 1400 more miles stretched ahead.

Throughout the early hours of this morning the plane's radio continued to flash back the cheery message "All's well!" A few hours before the fliers had fought and conquered a terrific tropical storm.

RADIUM POISON VICTIMS OFFER LIVING BODIES

WILL SUBMIT TO SCIENTIFIC EXPERIMENTS IN HOPE OF FINDING CURE FOR BAFFLING MALADY—EACH OF FIVE GIRLS SUIING FOR $250,000

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN
 International News Service Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK, May 29.—Two of the five New Jersey girls who are said to be doomed to die of radium poisoning, contracted while they were in the employ of the United States radium corporation at Orange, N. J., today had volunteered to submit to scientific experiments in the hope that a cure may be found for the dreaded malady.

They are Miss Katherine Schaub, of Newark and Mrs. Edna Hussman of Hillside.

Bodies of radium poisoned persons have been examined and experimented on frequently after death, but never have scientists been given reign in cases of living victims.

"I will submit willingly to experiments when Dr. Humphries (Dr. Robert Humphries, of Orthopaedic Hospital, Orange) says the word," said Mrs. Hussman today.

Damage suits aggregating $1,250,000 filed against the company by Miss Schaub, Mrs. Hussman and the three other plaintiffs, Miss Grace Fryer, Mrs. Quinta McDonald and Mrs. Albina Larice, are expected to go to joint trial on Friday, June 9 before Supreme Court Justice W. F. Mountain in Newark. Written notifications to this effect, it was said, has been dispatched to opposing counsel by Judge Mountain.

Raymond H. Berry, attorney for the girls, is battling for separate trials. Each girl is suing for $250,000. They say they hope that justice will come to their aid quickly so that they can make some use of the money before they die.

The girl victims declare that their work at the radium plant consisted of painting watch dials with a luminous substance, and that it was their practice to bring the small brush they used to a point with the tip of the tongue. Thus they were poisoned.

Fourteen deaths, it is claimed have been traced to the dreaded malady.

PARIS, May 29.—(INS)—Mme. Curie, noted scientist, who, with her husband, discovered radium, expressed hope today that the American government would investigate the poisoning of girl workers in a New Jersey watch factory, while painting dials and watch hands with radium.

"I will take the greatest interest in reading the medical reports upon these cases because I really don't know just what the girls were using when they were poisoned," said Mme. Curie.

"It is possible the girls may have been using polonium, of which one thousand millionth of a gram is sufficient to kill a person, and polonium is not as deadly as radium."

Mme. Curie said if the girls absorbed radium through their mouths tragedy might result as that form of poisoning is much more serious than absorption through the lungs.

Mme. Curie said she wished to emphasize the fact that she is a chemist, not a physician; consequently was reluctant to offer any medical information.

FIND NEW METAL TO MAKE PLANES LIGHTER; WILL HELP AVIATION

By International News Service

BERLIN.—

A revolution in the construction of aircraft is predicted by aviation experts as a result of the discovery of a new manufacturing process by which electron metal can be manufactured in large quantities.

Electron metal is just as durable but is forty percent lighter than aluminum. This is of the greatest importance to aviation because it reduces the dead weight of the craft and enables it to carry that much more freight and fuel. The crew of the "Bremen" which flew from Balldone to Greencastle Island had even peeled the oranges it took along as food in order to take a few more drops of fuel along and these additional drops proved its salvation.

The discovery of the new process has been made by the I. G. Farbenindustrie the great German dye trust whose chemical laboratories have brought forth more than one revolutionary product. It has constructed special plants at Bitterfeld for production of this metal.

Electron metal was discovered before the war and has already been used in the construction of auto and airplane engines. Until the discovery of the I. G. Farbenindustrie process, however, it was impossible to produce this metal in commercial quantities.

The basis of the new metal is magnesium.

UNTAPPED AREA OF NEW GUINEA OFFERS RICHES

By ROBERT S. THORNBURGH
 International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON.—

Few countries of the world offer the fascinating interest either to scientists or laymen as the vast island of New Guinea, according to review of its history issued by the National Geographic Society.

In spite of its imperial dimensions, only the continental island of Australia and the Arctic island of Greenland being larger among the islands of the world New Guinea is one of the last parts of the earth to be explored.

"Its pestilential swampy coasts, jungle bordered rivers, mountainous interior and savage population have kept the island as it was when it emerged at the dawn of history," The National Geographic said.

"So extensive is the area of New Guinea that it could swallow up the State of Texas and have enough room left to take care of Washington or Georgia."

How It Was Named

The island first was discovered by Portuguese and Spanish adventurers of the sixteenth century. The old sea captains are said to have given the island its name because the fancied resemblance of its people to the natives of Guinea on the African coast.

Later Dutch and English succeeded to the claims of the first comers. At present New Guinea is roughly divided into political halves by the 141st meridian of longitude. The part facing Borneo and Java is under Dutch administration while the rest is governed by Australia.

Australia has long had charge of the Papuan coast near her own shores, but the northern country, formerly a German colony is administered as a mandate under the League of Nations. Thus Australian rights to New Guinea are of two kinds, those prevailing in her old regions and those arising from the mandated territory north of her own possessions.

According to the Geographic the British and Dutch portions of the island are alike in having little known and comparatively untapped interior.

Studied By Experts

"Native life," said the Society, "long has been an object of serious study to scientists and racial experts. There seems to be considerable variation among the tribes. But in a general way it may be said that they are dark in color and with kinky or frizzly hair, rather than brown or yellow and straight haired as their Malay or Polynesian neighbors to the east and west."

"New Guinea natives have for years been considered particularly backward and ferocious, having often been accused of head hunting and cannibalism. Along the coast in some places they live in rude huts, built on piles above the water. There are island tribes who for the sake of protection dwell in communal 'long houses' of enormous size."

"In the far mountains of the interior is found a pygmy race of black men whose culture is that of the stone age. On account of its altitude their homeland is often cold, yet they wear no clothes beyond loin coverings. They keep no domestic animals and do not weave, spin or make implements except of stone."

JUNE 15 CLOSING DATE FOR BASEBALL ENTRIES

By International News Service
 INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., June 2.—

The closing date for the entering of teams in the American Legion's national junior baseball competition has been extended to June 15, Dan Sowers, national director of Americanism who is in charge of the baseball program has announced.

The change was made in order to allow high school players, who in many cases are not permitted by their schools to play on outside teams during the school year, to enroll in the competition.

Three more states, Maryland, New Hampshire and Delaware, reported their quotas of boys' teams reached during the past week.

First Shot Counts Says
 Bancroft As Police Head

Shoot first and ask questions afterwards!

That's the advice George Bancroft gives to his men in "The Drag Net," at the Granada Theatre today.

Bancroft takes the part of a fearless detective lieutenant in this melodrama of the eternal warfare between police and the organized crooks of a great city. The gangsters get so flagrant with their law violations in a certain district that Bancroft is transferred to that section with orders to clean them out.

Staking his life on a bold move he walks into the social headquarters of the gangsters and gives them notice that they must clear out of the district in ten days. They make their answer with bullets.

The story of this thrilling action picture starts out with a murder trial in progress, and it keeps moving into one tense situation after another until the final smashing climax when Bancroft, singlehanded, meets seven gangsters in a fight for his manhood, his love and revenge.

Josef von Sternberg, the man who directed Bancroft in "Underworld" is the director of "The Drag Net." Evelyn Brent, the stormy eyed brunette who took the feminine lead in "Underworld" and again had that role in "The Showdown" is the girl in this picture.

THE VONCASTLE

Ronald Colman and Vilma Banky
 Co-Star in "The Magic Flame"

Smell of sawdust, ear piercing barkers, roar of wild animals, popcorn peanuts and pink lemonade, wide-eyed children and large canvas tents. The circus has come to town!

"The Magic Flame," Henry King's great production for Samuel Goldwyn, opened at the Voncastle theatre today for a two-day engagement. The picture contains all the time-honored traditional acts, lacking which no circus would be worthy the name. In addition it is the greatest romantic love story this pair has yet brought to the screen.

The opening sequence shows Ronald Colman as Tito, the clown, and Vilma Banky, as Bianca, the tight rope walker. Such a clown and such an acrobat! Who would suspect the cavalier Ronald of "The Night of Love" or the dashing engineer of "Barbara Worth" could don the make up and transport himself into such a marvelous characterization?

Colman is a real clown; gesture for gesture, trick for trick he might have spent his life on the sawdust or stepped through a blazing hoop in the ring of Barnum and Bailey. When he first makes his entrance it is as the clown and there is no suspicion in the minds of the audience until he doffs his make-up that underneath the pipe clay exterior is the Romeo of Romeos.

As this was the last picture Vilma Banky made before her marriage to Rod La Rocque it is hardly surprising that she found "The Magic Flame" and brought a new atmosphere to her love-making. As Bianca, the little circus dancer, she is superb.

PARACHUTE SCHOOLS FOR TRAVELLERS TO BE NECESSITY SOON

By International News Service
 WASHINGTON, June 4.—The American travelling public will have to go to parachute schools one of these days as a part of its general education.

The expansion of commercial airways throughout the United States and the constantly increased travel in the air by persons owning their own planes has brought about the necessity for a widespread knowledge of the use of the parachute, Army aviators declare.

The parachute, thus far the only known and tested safety device for those who are stranded high above the earth in a frail machine of whistling wires and struts, is as important as the airplane engine, aviators say. When the engine fails the parachute is the only resort left. As soon as the general run of aerial passengers realize the parachute makes their safety in the air practically certain, Army fliers say, commercial aviation will show a far greater expansion of passenger carrying air lines.

The most important advantage of parachute practice, say those who have made the leap, is that it instills confidence in the jumper.

"When people tell you stories of chutes that don't open," declared one officer, "take it with a grain of salt. There are ways and ways to get killed in a parachute, but it will always open for you if you pull the ring."

DRY MEN PINCH TOWN OFFICIALS IN BOOZE FIGHT

By International News Service
 DENVER.—

The "licensed saloon" still exists in at least one section of Colorado, according to sensational charges made by United States dry agents following the arrest of three officials of the mountain town of Silverton, in western Colorado.

The three officials arrested are James Pilling, police magistrate; Charles A. Leonard, town marshal and William Lonergon, city councilman and former night marshal. They were taken in custody on federal warrants issued following their indictment in Denver by a grand jury. The action was the aftermath of more than a year's investigation by federal dry agents and the indictments specifically charge conspiracy to violate the national prohibition laws.

The three were released on $7,500 bond.

Indictment and arrest of the Silverton officials was the outgrowth of charges that bootleggers and saloon keepers have been permitted to operate in the town on a "license basis" the "licenses" being paid in the form of intermittent "fines."

One count in the indictments against the men alleges that the three Silverton town officials conspired to bring about the opening of a saloon in the town, and that by the terms of the conspiracy the saloonkeeper was to be allowed to operate in open defiance of law provided he agreed to pay frequent "fines."

The "fines" according to allegations amounted to $100 and "costs", the costs running to $9.75. The frequency of the fines was regulated by the amount of business done by alleged saloonkeepers, according to federal authorities who also charge that the town officials instead of attempting to curb dry law violations, encouraged illicit liquor traffic.

Whether the city treasury of Silverton benefitted from the "license" system is still under investigation.

BRITISH AIR MEN MAKE ENGINE TO HAVE 1,000 H. P.

By J. KINGSBURY SMITH
 International News Service Staff Correspondent

LONDON.—

British aeronautical experts have attained another achievement. They have constructed an aero engine capable of developing 1,000 horsepower.

Equipped with 12 cylinders and called the 490 h. p. Rolls-Royce F. 12, this engine will add about thirty miles an hour to the speed of heavily loaded bombing planes. It uses in proportion to its power, less fuel and has a smaller frontal area than any other standard aero engine in the world.

This economy in fuel will enable bombing aircraft to be built for a greater radius of action and the reduced frontal area will permit the fuselage to be so streamlined that a much higher speed will be obtainable. The frontal area is considerably less than that of the 900 horsepower engine used by the Italian "ace" Bernardini when he obtained the world's air speed record of 218 miles an hour. The twelve cylinders are arranged in the shape of a V. The carburetors are between the cylinders and the magnetos are tucked away at the rear of the engine, which has many novel technical features, the details of which are unavailable owing to the secrecy of their design.

The compression ratio is 6 to 1, and the fuel consumption at normal power and speed is 30 gallons an hour. Designed by Mr. Royce, the engine weighs 865 pounds. It has successfully passed the Air Ministry's 100 hours' test and is now being fitted in to a fuselage of one of the Royal Air Force's giant bombers.

WAS BEDFAST WITH RHEUMATISM UNTIL SHE GOT KONJOLA

"This New Medicine Restored My Health After A Drug Store Shelf Of Other Remedies Failed," Says Lady

MRS. A. GEIST

"Konjola ended my rheumatism and restored my health in general after a Drug Store shelf of other remedies failed," said Mrs. A. Geist's statement. She lives at 2914 Holden Ave., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

"The rheumatism pains centered in my arms and legs. The joints in my legs were stiff and swollen and out of proportion. I couldn't bend my fingers to lace my shoes. I could hardly move at times and everybody looked upon me as a cripple. Even baths and other treatments failed to help me and finally I had to go to bed because my feet and legs were practically useless. I also suffered with stomach trouble and was always in misery after meals."

"A few days ago I started with Konjola and there was a remarkable change in my whole system. Within a week my stomach was in good condition. Then the rheumatism began to ease up and now there is not a single ache or pain anywhere in my body. Konjola is a God send to sufferers if they will only give it a fair trial."

Konjola is sold in Greencastle at the Owl Drug Store and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this section.—Adv.

MAY DRAFT COOLIDGE IS REPORT

MOVEMENT REACHES KANSAS CITY IN PERSON OF CHARLES D. HILLES—ONLY PRESIDENT CAN PREVENT NAME BEING VOTED ON

By GEORGE R. HOLMES
International News Service Staff Correspondent

KANSAS CITY, June 4.—The name of Calvin Coolidge quite probably will be presented to the Republican National convention here next week and voted upon—unless and until the president, by some positive definite action, forbids it. This much assured today as the G. O. P. elders gathered in Kansas City and got down to the actual work of the convention, the first of which is the settlement of the perennial quarrels among the Lily-Whites and the Blacks and Tans of the always Democratic South.

The "draft Coolidge whether or no" movement reached Kansas City in the person of Charles D. Hilles, the New York national committeeman, who has been the chief rallying post for the Anti-Hoover forces of the east. Like a sentinel pine Hilles has stood out against the gale-like winds that have blown many of the other leaders into the Hoover camp. He may have swayed at times, but he has never fallen.

Who will present the magic name of Coolidge, if it is to be formally presented to the convention; who will lead the fight in the open and behind the scene, Mr. Hilles did not say. But he appeared quite confident that when the balloting begins ten days hence there will be a lot of votes to be added in the column that carries at its masthead the name of Calvin Coolidge.

DRUNK FINED HERE MONDAY

Johnson, it was said, left a camp at Ellettsville, and wandered into Greencastle with too much alcoholic beverage in his system. His staggering attracted the attention of the town marshal who placed him under arrest.

Sheriff Edward Eiteljorge notified Johnson's foreman Monday morning and he was expected here to bail Johnson out of the local hoosegow.

A hole was punched in the radiator, the bumper torn off and a fender damaged. It was towed to the Tribby garage for repairs.

Greencastle persons returning from Indianapolis Sunday night reported a big accident at Plainfield. A collision between two cars caused a tie up of traffic and a resulting smashup of other cars. Robert Bowman, of Greencastle, had the Ford car in which he was riding, damaged when a big bus smashed into the rear of it as he was flagged down. The principals in the accident crashed head-on, it was said, telescoping two cars. Ambulances, officers and physicians were summoned from Indianapolis to clear the scene of the crash. It was reported that several were injured but state dispatches Monday carried no account of a fatal accident at Plainfield.

It was said the young men may face other charges.

P. E. O. Sisterhood To Hold Convention

The state convention of the P. E. O. Sisterhood will be held in Indianapolis, June 19, 20 and 21, with chapter F of Indianapolis as hostess. Mrs. James A. Stuart is president of the hostess chapter.

The sisterhood was one of the earliest college sororities, founded in 1869 at Iowa Wesleyan college. When the college sorority came to be a Greek letter organization, P. E. O. not wishing to change its letters or be limited to college chapters became a city institution. The high ideals set forth as aims and objects of the constitution have helped more than forty-one thousand women who now comprise its membership, to a higher plane of living.

The philanthropic interests of the sisterhood are educational. In the last few years the chapters have successfully launched a scholarship fund for the exclusive use of the girls needing aid in obtaining higher education. More than sixteen hundred girls have received loans from this fund. Chapters endeavor to make only wise recommendations after a careful investigation of the merits of the applicant. Girls who have been aided by this loan show their progress by letters of appreciation and their prompt remittances.

The sisterhood is divided into local and state chapters and a supreme chapter, with Mrs. Ola Babcock Miller of Iowa City as supreme president. There are now 1,300 chapters in thirty-six states.

Delegates from the Greencastle chapter will attend the meeting.

asked this question of his own age: 'What will ye do in the end thereof?' His was an age when people were more interested in the present than in the future. This is also true of our own age. We have largely forgotten about the end of the day. And yet, nothing is more sure than that every one of us must come to the end of the day. 'It is appointed unto man once to die,' and no man escapes that final call. The Bible has much to say about the end of the day, and one thing is sure from the statements of the Bible, that in the end of the day there will be some kind of a judgement passed upon every human soul. 'We do not say much about the judgement in our day, and this is true, perhaps, because of the extreme and grotesque ways in which the judgement was presented in the old theology. There is nothing unreasonable or impossible in the New Testament idea of judgement. It rests upon the idea of the freedom of the human will, and it is not an arbitrary judgement. Jesus tells us in the twenty-fifth chapter of Matthew what this judgement shall be, and remember that he is speaking as a parable in this chapter. There are just two general judgements which will be passed upon men in the end of the day: First, 'Come ye blessed of my Father, inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the beginning of the earth.' Second, 'Depart from me, ye cursed, into everlasting fire, prepared for the devil and his angels.' These judgements are based upon what men and women have done and not upon what they have believed. They are based upon the attitudes which men have manifested during this life, and upon the way in which they have discharged the common obligations to their God and their fellows. They are not judgements which are passed by an arbitrary God but judgements which men and women pass upon themselves by the way they live among men. In the end of the day, every person will discover that for them the final judgement will be exactly what they have made it by their own attitudes and type of living. It will be upon this basis that the Master will say either, 'Come inherit,' or 'depart ye'."

the kitchen and came out in the sitting room to talk to the officer. When Fulk told Lady that he wanted him to come to headquarters to explain the conditions under which they were living, Lady excused himself for a few minutes to finish eating his supper, remarking, "I guess you won't object to me finishing my meal." Chief Fulk responded, "Oh, no," and tried to keep an eye on Lady when he returned to the kitchen but fear lent speed to Lady's plans and wings to his feet, and before the officer realized it Lady did a Houdini and the kitchen was empty. Lady decamped without his coat and hat and Chief Fulk took possession of them and is holding them as hostages for Lady's return.

Charges of adultery were to have been preferred against Lady and Mrs. Simmerman but when Lady disappeared ed Chief Fulk accepted the offer of the woman to leave town.

While Lady is said to have moved the family from Greencastle here he was not on hand this morning to move them back and they were forced to walk out of town. Mrs. Simmerman told Chief Fulk that they had had nothing to eat since Friday morning and the officer gave them some money to buy food.

At War On Prohibition

THE LONG-RANGE debate between Governor Alfred E. Smith of New York (left) and William G. McAdoo, former secretary of the treasury, continues, with the latter declaring the one fundamental issue to be: "Shall a State be permitted to disregard any portion of the Constitution which it elects not to obey?" The Governor had asserted the Volstead Act was a part of the laws of New York State, and no further enforcement laws were necessary there. Said Mr. McAdoo: "Police enforcement is the principle and normal function of the State Governments. Deprived of the effective co-operation of the police of the States, the Amendment becomes a nullity. This is what happened in New York and Maryland," (International Newsreel and International Illustrated News)

Shaw Says Poor Can't Save And Should Not Make Thrift Effort

By International News Service
NEW YORK, June 1.—Poor people "cannot save and should not try to," George Bernard Shaw asserts in his newest book, "The Intelligent Woman's Guide to Socialism and Capitalism," published here by Brentano's. To preach thrift to the poor is "not only foolish but wicked," Shaw declares, since nine out of ten lack the necessities of life, and adds that "spending is not only a first necessity but a first duty."

"Stuff and nonsense," he characterized the notion the wealth of the world may be stored up. He says capital is only spare money, so only those who have more than they want can have capital. "What is called saving is only making a bargain for the future," he states.

Shaw in his volume discusses virtually every phase of human conduct from the "Communism of the Apostles" to our own times. He gives a prophet's vision of what the world would be like under Socialism, traces the course of empires and civilizations, delves into the reasons for their origin and decay, and pictures the cyclical swings of governments through monarchies to republics and present day dictatorships.

Matters Discussed
Women, marriage, prohibition in America, eugenics, birth control are some of the matters surveyed in the book, which Shaw styles "my last will and testament to humanity."

The entire work of the world in the future may be done in two or three hours a day, Shaw says, for under Socialism the government would compel by force if need be, every able bodied man and woman to do some productive work. Shaw asserts that Socialism has as its fundamental tenet that there must be an equal distribution of wealth among all.

war in an attempt to stave it off.

Discussing marriage, he says Socialism has nothing to do with it directly as an institution. But by making women economically independent and permitting dissolution of unhappy or incompatible marriages, women would stop being regarded as men's property. The myth about the Russian naturalization of women printed in England in 1917 he ascribes to the existing assumption that women are property.

Equality of Income
Under the present system, Shaw argues, many women would imitate Ibsen's Nora except that they fear loss of support or social ostracism. If they felt free to walk out of their homes, however, fewer marriages might be wrecked.

If equality of income were established, he says, no one would have to marry for money—a proceeding he calls unnatural—because there would be no different incomes and social standings as they exist today. All dis-appointments in marriage would be natural and inevitable. The nation must be entirely intermarriageable, he claims, to permit natural selection of mates.

He opposes the general strike as being impossible, for he says any nation really stopping work would be committing national suicide. He asserts that the subsidy paid the coal-owner during the miner's strike in Britain was "bad business" and urges nationalization of coal mines.

Popular government has failed to check the abuses of capitalism, he says. Women, given the vote, merely proved themselves as badly fitted for it as men, Shaw declares.

Disposing of past and present systems of society as failures Shaw asserts that Socialism by abolishing both poverty and wealth would increase general wealth and distribute it equally among all. He denies that incentive to do or accomplish anything would be banished, for merit would produce reputations that were real and distinct from titles and honors that can now be obtained through money.

FIND PERPETUAL MOTION ANSWER IN WARM WATER

By ROBERT W. THOMPSON
International News Service Staff Correspondent

PARIS.—Perpetual motion has been harnessed and turned to industrial account. It can be obtained from waters of two different temperatures and this being the case the Atlantic ocean is expected to furnish the energy hitherto obtained from Waterfalls and falls and coal.

Professor Paul Bouchert and Monsieur George Claude discovered the principle, demonstrated in a miniature scale before the Academy of Science two years ago and were solemnly assured by scientists it could never be developed much beyond the toy stage.

Used River Water

But now Professor Bouchert has developed 50 kilowatts from a turbine in a factory at Liege, Belgium, according to the "Quotidien." There, he used river water and the heated streams coming from the boiler cooling system. His next step will be to prove that the ocean is provided by nature with waters of sufficiently different temperature to produce the energizing steam.

In 1926 the Academy of Sciences say a top turbine put in operation by steam made by water in two bowls, the fluid in one heated to 75 degrees Fahr., the other freshly melted ice.

"In tropical seas surface water is sufficiently warm while at certain depths currents returning from the Poles are cold enough," said Bouchert and Claude. "The ocean can be made to do what the water in these two glass bowls have done. The ocean contains inexhaustible energy capable of operating floating factories."

Secret Process

But members of the Academy objected that deep sea water contains gaseous elements that would react unfavorably. Professor Bouchert says experiments in Belgium proved he was able to extract the gas by a process he is keeping secret.

"The opposing temperatures were 93 degrees Fahr. and 53 degrees Fahr.," he said, "but I tried to decrease this difference and finally brought it down to 12 degrees. Fahr. With a turbine that has 3,000 revolutions a minute I am sure that 5 degrees will be enough difference."

"In considering various localities for the utilization of ocean water I believe that the first 'steam factory' may be built at Havana, Cuba, where we could produce 40,000 kilowatts to begin with."
